Dion Kliner: The Secret Life of Art: Piotr Nathan's How Far Do You Dare To Go

As well as this rather superficial similarity, the two artists' work is also linked on a level that operates with terms such as donation and surrender. In alternating cutouts and outlines, they construct an area that separates, protects and shields, but which also marks a gentle transition and seems to wrap the viewer in a cocoon drawn in the air.

Antje

He worked mainly for the theatre, as a book illustrator and an author of essays about art. In the collection of the State Russian Museum. Not only is the Belkin one of Vancouver's best designed spaces in which to see art, but it now offers the first Canadian exhibition of an artist well known in Europe and the United States.
