Why did the Crusades want the Holy Land?

The similar ideologies held the armies to similar goals, but the connections were rarely strong, and unity broke down often.

First Crusade

Available at: ThorFire Enterprises, 2018. His third brother, Alphonse of Poitiers, arrived in October with reinforcements from France, and they set out for Cairo.

THE CRUSADES TO THE HOLY LAND

Anthony Messenger Press, 2009 , 37-52.

Crusades

They were recognized in 1113 by Pope Paschal II. According to Tancred's biographer, he was worried about the sinful nature of knightly warfare, and was excited to find a holy outlet for violence. Fellow Christians sometimes gave them gifts of food and money, but more often than not, the crusaders simply looted and pillaged whenever the opportunity presented itself.

Crusaders in the Holy Land, Crusades

Many historians contend that the motivations for the Third Crusade were more political than religious, thereby giving rise to the disagreements between the German, French, and English armies throughout the crusade. Confronted by this invasion and a revolt of his own barons, Richard was able to skillfully turn back these attacks. King Philip returned to France and Leopold of Austria left as well.

Pope Urban II Orders First Crusade

Saladin captured Acre on July 10. His travels there culminated in the ten-day , where on Tuesday 27 November he gave an impassioned sermon to a large audience of French nobles and clergy.

Life in the Crusades

Many, such as Stephen of Blois, deserted.
