Vladivostok also has air pollution problems for part of the year and there are serious marine pollution problems on parts of the Vladivostok-Nakhodka area caused by industrial wastes, sewage, hydrocarbons and sediment. The current early stage of development of the TRADP concept and the limited amount of accurate environmental information that could be collected during this study would render any attempt at producing a list of specific impacts meaningless. Such guidelines might identify, for each zone, those activities which are allowed to occur without requiring permission, those that require permission and some level of environmental impact assessment, and those which are prohibited because of potentially serious conflicts with permitted uses or with the environmental values of the zone.
