Initial Teacher Education Partnership

The current study seeks to note controversies and possible achievements of teachers in their struggles for the greater social approbation of the teaching profession. Partnership in education, specifically in teacher training, is a very recent subject of research in the international scenario and is in a great phase of construction between researchers at universities and teachers at schools.

Working in partnership together to make a difference and transform lives Our mission To improve the educational outcomes and life chances of children in the region and beyond through dynamic, research-informed and evidence-based initial teacher education. GITEP and the University both focus solely on secondary teacher training and share a commitment to developing outstanding subject expertise. This raises the questioning of the technical rationality that is very present in graduate courses, which the relationship between theory and practice in the qualification of teaching is dichotomized.
