Logan Martin is the third reservoir in a chain of six on the Coosa River, which begins with Weiss Lake on the Georgia border and extends almost to Montgomery. Weiss Dam, creating the reservoir, was begun as the first of seven hydroelectric projects on the Coosa in 1958, and finished three years later. The Rome Sailing Club began at Garden Lakes in 1955, but moved to Lake Weiss in 1980.

Lake on Steam

It is a concrete and earthen gravity dam, 126 feet 38 m high, named after Fernand C. Weiss, Alabama Power's chief engineer. Below the bridge, Logan Martin expands into large areas of open water.
