Chopping Wood: Audio Shiur: Hagadah shel Pesach

Existing manuscripts do not go back beyond the thirteenth century, the time, probably, when the service for Passover eve was first written separately, since no mention of the fact occurs in earlier writings. These are of great variety, in both subject and treatment.

HAGGADAH (SHEL PESAH)

The Haggadah, being the chief ritual work for home use in which none of the questions in regard to using human figures for decorative purposes could arise, afforded manifold opportunities for illustration. Of these midrashim one of the most important is that of the four sons, representing four different attitudes toward religion: the wise or studious, the wicked or skeptical, the simple or indifferent, and the ignorant who is too unintelligent to ask for enlightenment. When such a volume was compiled, it became customary to add poetical pieces.

We shall say in His presence 'Hallelujah! Gamaliel introduced a ritual proves conclusively that the services of Passover eve already existed. One of the most cherished texts in Judaism, the haggadah was originally part of the Hebrew daily prayer book, becoming an independent unit around the 13th century CE.
