Native American Religions

Animals were used to represent certain ideas, characteristics, and spirits.

Sacred Land

On the contrary, the stories imply a close mystical relationship binding each element p. When the steady military success of the British culminated in the expulsion of France from Canada, the Indians no longer could play the diplomatic card of agreeing to support whichever king—the one in London or the one in —would restrain westward settlement. The Aboriginals see the land they inhabited for thousands of years as sacred, as a gift from The Mother; not only has it been taken from them and desecrated for mostly fiscal purposes, but they have now been placed in homes of poor quality by the very people who are ruining the sacred land — this loss of dignity and control is the source of the health collapse in the current aboriginal population.

An Iroquois tale tells of Tepeu and Gucumatz, who sat around together and thought up a bunch of different things, like earth, the stars, and the ocean. Rigidity can creep in and set even the young mind if there are no soft memories, no laughter, no times too deep for tears. In the Bible we read: And the Lord God formed man.

How Did Native Americans Respond to Christianity?

To the colonists, the differences in their religion were hardly as important as the differences between native American religion and the religion of settlers.

The Great Spirit has made us all. Native American religion is hard to explain.

Native American Religion

Two-spirit people were respected by native societies not only due to religious attitudes, but also because of practical concerns.

Native American religions

You saw that we, who understand and practice those rules, believed all your stories; why do you refuse to believe ours? Their beliefs were not understood and the complexity of their religion was not seen.

Religion

He orders all things, and he has given us a fine day for our council. Parliamentary opinion was angered by what it perceived as colonial lawlessness, but British merchants were worried about the embargo on British imports.
