The energy injustice of hydropower: Development, resettlement, and social exclusion at the Hongjiang and Wannipo hydropower stations in China

Keeping in mind the 32 per cent target for renewables, to be achieved by a massive deployment of intermittent wind and solar energy sources, hydropower is a key enabler for the stability of the power system. The more conventional Waba dam rehabilitation project presented by Eric Tiedje Hatch, Canada illustrated a common problem of the modern inventory of dams: aging.

Aspirations undone: hydropower and the (re) shaping of livelihood pathways in Northern Laos

We should recall that the same company undertook the construction of another power plant of 28MW at Farahantsana Mahitsy.

Hydropower in India: A Source of Heightened Risk and Inequality

Transparency International has consistently listed Laos as having one of the highest levels of corruption in Asia.

Ankaterena

Here, hydropower will play a major role. .
