I also like it how Dad and Dave Come to Town supports capitalism with a heart. You can easily see why it would have made a good movie - there's several escapes and chases on horse back plus shoot outs and romance. The haunted house sequence is would be touched upon with The Ghost in the Invisible Bikini, I guess.

Rayes was an American touring the country with his juggling vaudeville act when cast as Jim Bradley Hall frequently press-ganged touring foreigners into his films and this seems to be his only movie — a great waste, for his scenes with Richards snap and crackle.

The Great Unmade Robert Aldrich Romantic Comedy: 2012

Redford's performance doesn't fill in the blanks, either - he's very handsome and charismatic but not a great public speaker. The goody goody priest feels like something from out of Mara Maru, the underwater footage looks murky and dull, the plot is unexciting.

It's all rather fun - I was absolutely in the right mood to watch it and it worked a treat.

Flashman collection by George MacDonald Fraser (First US Edition Hardcover)

He meets many famous people, and survives some of the worst military disasters of the period the , the , the , the , and the , always coming out with more heroic laurels.
