Federal :: Energy and Mineral Development Program (EMDP); Solicitation of Proposals

The evaluation, which was preceded by an assessment process, was to examine if the activities cost-shared under the agreement aligned with its intent, identify possible changes to improve the agreement and its cost-shared programming, and assess the relevance of cost-shared programming to clients with disabilities. This type of analysis, though relatively inexpensive and useful in providing a list of components in a sample, does not yield a reliable, quantitative measure of tenor. Some noted that employment programming alone serves certain client groups poorly.

Finally, compared to government-run agencies, certain designated agencies appear to have a more positive impact on client outcomes.

Province of Manitoba

Successful employment of individuals results in provincial savings to EIA. Key informants also remarked on what they perceived to be a work disincentive from the provincial EIA structure. As such, the development of these best practices cannot be attributed to the CM-LMAPD.

Response: The Department agrees with this commenter's calculation that the meeting should take place by that time, but is not including this benchmark in the rule in order to retain the flexibility afforded in the existing regulation, which provides that the meeting will occur as at the earliest practicable time. The additional language is not necessary in the definition of TEDO because the Tribal law and Tribal jurisdiction language is provided in existing § 224. This rule also establishes how, as an alternative to entering into a TERA, a Tribe may obtain certification of a Tribal Energy Development Organization TEDO.
