Of Tradition, Transformism: The Ethics Of Paul by P. Linwood Urban

We need to turn from all that is not peacemaking and seek peace and pursue peace every day, every step, every moment for the rest of our lives. I think it's valuable for all of us as individuals, communities, a nation, a world to form a vision of a world more in accord with God's Word.

Of Tradition, Transformism: The Ethics Of Paul by P. Linwood Urban

The being of each of the three Persons is a pure and complete extasis, a going out, a self-giving, a vital impulse toward the other two The concept of person finds its most perfect and mysterious realization in the Trinity. Are we growing food, manufacturing products in a healthy, sustainable way, with regard for safety for workers and farmers with adequate recompense for their work? Karen Armstrong, an original and inclusive thinker on the role of religion in the modern world. If we do, good things will follow.

The Center and Library for the Bible and Social Justice (clbsj)

Better than Shakespeare, Yeats and Eliot rolled into one. He is the author of more than forty novels, anthologies of essays, and books of poetry that use his intimate knowledge of his Kentucky River farm home as the starting point for eloquent and penetrating critiques of the modern agricultural system and its consequences for communities, families, and politics. Communal prayerful discernment will make a spiritually healthy church.

St Philip's Seminary

I feel it's never too late to begin anew. I thought Yoder misunderstood the nature of our Wesleyan heritage.
