So apparently even the Reformed leaders realized that there can be good reasons, educational reasons, to read Scripture lessons out of context! The following lectionary is based on the Revised Common Lectionary, with selections made on the basis of United Methodist needs and traditions, including the use of the Psalter from The Common Lectionary, as it appears in The United Methodist Hymnal.

The Reformed Church solved this problem with the Heidelberg Catechism. The Sacred Congregation for Divine Worship directed that it be used beginning on November 30, 1969, the First Sunday of Advent for the 1970 liturgical year. People noted that some lessons were too long and some were too short, that certain lections could be improved with a verse or two added at one end or the other.

Becoming More Common: Why more and more congregations are turning to the Common Lectionary for worship planning Plain text expositions are in draft form only. The second option provides readings that relate to the New Testament readings.

By appointment of two popes Pal VI in 1972, John Paul II in 1996 Brown was a member of the Roman Pontifical Biblical Commission. This lectionary provides Scripture readings for proclamation in public worship, following the Sundays, festivals and seasons of the Christian year or liturgical calendar.

Lectionary Scripture Notes, Cycle B

I noticed that the Daily Lectionary on the PC USA website sometimes includes readings from the Apocrypha. Not only were the readings organized according to a plan whereby a richer fare of scripture was read in liturgical celebrations, in contrast to the medieval lectionary where the choice of readings was simply helter-skelter, but for the first time in history the Sunday lectionary covered a period of three years, each year being dedicated to a particular synoptic author--Matthew, Mark, or Luke.
