SOUL OF A NATION: ART IN THE AGE OF BLACK POWER

The Black Emergency Cultural Coalition is a good example of an arts group that formed in protest against racial exclusion.

Review: Searing moments of American truths in 'Soul of a Nation: Art in the Age of Black Power'

This landmark exhibition is a rare opportunity to see era-defining artworks that changed the face of art in America. Soul of a Nation: Art in the Age of Black Power 1963-1983 shines a bright light on the vital contribution of Black artists made over two decades, beginning in 1963 at the height of the civil rights movement.

Soul Of A Nation Underground Jazz, Street Funk & The Roots of Rap 1968

Entitled Jazz is the Teacher, Funk is the Preacher: Afro-Centric Jazz, Street Funk and the Roots of Rap in the Black Power Era 1969-75, it follows the runaway success of the Soul of a Nation — Art in the Age of Black Power exhibition, which opened to acclaim at the Tate Modern last year. But other artists may be unfamiliar, collected by exhibit organizers in a sweep across the country. Gil Scott-Heron — Whitey On The Moon 14.

SOUL OF A NATION: ART IN THE AGE OF BLACK POWER

Crystal Bridges Museum of American Art, Bentonville, Ark. In the '60s, American music and culture were going through profound changes, and the seismic shifts in both politics and the arts were felt especially strongly in the African-American community.

Review: Powerful black art exhibit 'Soul of a Nation' in SF

Hendricks, Betye Sayer, Romare Bearden, David Hammons, Faith Ringgold, Emory Douglas, Sun Ra. A correction to an earlier version of this article has been appended to the end of the article. Hendricks conveys a range of complexions by seamlessly transitioning between highly malleable, slow-drying oil paint and fast-drying acrylic to suggest different textures and surfaces.
