MOFA: An Action Plan for EU

In the process of strengthening and extending this co-operation a socialist system of world economy is being formed and developed. They will, therefore, continue to adopt vigorous measures for a fuller mobilization of the whole range of their domestic financial resources and for ensuring the most effective use of available resources, both internal and external. In view of the importance of food aid as a transitional measure, all countries should accept both the principle of a minimum food aid target and the concept of forward planning of food aid.

A/RES/S

Sustainable food systems for healthy diets in Europe and Central Asia: Introduction to the special issue

A study conducted by Europe economics revealed that, from 1995 to 1997, more than half of the new medications surveyed were unavailable through pharmacies in Portugal, Italy, and Greece. Socialist countries of Eastern Europe will take the necessary action fully to implement, by the beginning of the Decade, and in any case not later than 1972, recommendations contained in section II of resolution 15 II of 25 March 1968, adopted by the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development at its second session.

A/RES/25/2626

Glasnost was also essential in order to de-centralise, corporatise and privatise the economy. In 1998, the Chinese government began introducing a new system, which was based on social insurance, and in April 2001, it ended the old system.

Water policy reforms in Eastern Europe, the Caucasus and Central Asia

In contrast, my colleague Professor Volker Ulrich from the University of Greifswald, Germany, and myself calculated expenditures by 2030 and 2040 using a different and we believe more accurate method of calculation yielding significantly different, and troubling, projections. Gradually the economy became incapable of supplying the elementary needs of the population. This system may seem good, but there is a problem.

Political Economy

The first of the four columns shows the net reproduction rate at the end of the 1990s. Important forestry products are cork, eucalyptus, oak, pine, and poplar.

Cooperative movement

When I began teaching, all this head bobbing made communication in the classroom interesting.
