Stirling, William (1851

From the above it is abundantly clear that Pentecost is a unique historical event. When they arrived at their stopping place, each halted and looked back.

Hebrews 12

We propose now to consider in juxtaposition with all these modern schemes for the elevation of mankind, on which we have been remarking, that one which is universally admitted to be the model scheme; the ideal of all that is lovely, tender, ennobling, and comprehensive. True to Tradition I have taken this up first because it is short.

The Discovery of Gastric Acid

And as in a politicke State, it is not safe to suffer a penny to be taken or forced from any man in an illegall way; so much lesse may an Ecclesiasticall government and power, or the Church of Christ extend their jurisdiction beyond the expresse and precise warrant of the Scripture Law, for Christs power being unlimited as he was God and Man, whosoever layes claim there unto to exercise it according to any other rule, subjects himself to the greatest temptation of becoming a boundlesse Tyrant, and the people to be enthralled by the most arbitrary and wretched tyranny and vassallage of any under heaven: 1. Are there any of you who feel that if you follow Christ you must lose by it--lose your station, or lose your reputation? There is an account of the plague among the sailors of the Duke and Duchess, 'when I took by storm the two cities of Guaiquil, under the line, in the South Seas. Take it as a sign of faultiness, and let severity begin at home.

The Learned Lady in England 1650

Summer is gone; and I am left behind; but they are happy.
