The conversion of land used for rice cultivation to seasonal and perennial crops reflects a shift in cropping pattern, whereas the conversion of rice land to nonagricultural uses indicates changes brought about by population pressures and infrastructure development.

Behavioral Sciences

By way of giving a package of services, these societies ensure a faster growth rate of tribal economy in our country. Agricultural sector growth depends on rectifying interregional disparities and improving access to capital, mechanization and quality inputs such as yield increasing seed technologies to enable commercialization and diversification.

They can neither afford the cheapest 4G LTE smartphone, nor the exorbitant cost of data charged by existing 2G operators. An evaluation study of 60 LAMP societies 1980 was conducted by the Bihar State Planning Board through constitution of four teams, one each for administrative structure, credit, marketing and consumer goods. The allowances have to be paid from State Government Funds, so there is a powerful incentive to provide work under the NREGA, which is paid by the central government.
