The University of Texas Publication. Classification in the Texas Prison System

Notes: Describes the work and program of the Bureau of Classification, which began its work as a University of Texas project on March 2, 1936, and continued until August 31, 1937, when the project was taken over by the Texas Prison System as a regular department.

This edition was published in 1938

The severity is assessed by the underlying conduct, not by the particular finding. The end of the war and reduced demand for cotton and wool products, however, resulted in financial difficulties as the prison population began to grow. Following this is the final, overall assessment that integrates all the information and comes up with a risk rating and custody placement level.
