Walter Butler, 11th Earl of Ormond

It was the start of a long inter-linking between the Grehan and Lescher families. The 7th Chief Butler, James , was granted the hereditary title 1st Earl of Ormond in 1328 after his marriage to the granddaughter of King Edward I Eleanor de Bohan, daughter of Princess Elizabeth and Humphrey de Bohan 6th Earl of Hereford and High Constable of England. Sometime before April 1235 the bailiffs of Leinster had retained a plot in the town of the new bridge of Ross with the intention of building a house there for use by Earl of Pembroke.

Ormonde, Earl of (I, 1328

After the fall of Clonmel in 1650, a great portion of the forfeited lands of the rebels was divided amongst the parliamentary adventurers, and subsequently confirmed to them by the act of settlement after the Restoration. The first English army that penetrated into this part of the island was led in person by Hen.

County Tipperary

However, Cromwellian grantees benefitted greatly from the dismantling of the lands of the many of the lessor Butler branches. They were rescued by a ruse. This manor was formerly part of the estate of John, Lord Somery.

Piers Butler, 8th Earl of Ormond

The works were opened in four places called the Old Works, Knockeen, and Kevestown, on Lord Dunally's estate, and Garryard, on that of Lord Norbury. The journal remains devoted to the publication of articles and documents on the history of all legal systems. The Earl of Ormond also held the manor of Hagley from Sir Maurice Berkeley, worth £16 net per year.

County Tipperary in the 1830s

C12th , down to the death of James 2nd Duke of Ormonde in 1745. They acquired Kilkenny Castle in 1391 from the Despenser property, which became the seat of the Butlers until it was handed to the people of Kilkenny in 1967. He was also made of the of Tipperary on 21 June 1505, succeeding his distant relation,.

There are several other detached bogs, all capable of being reclaimed, because they command a fall towards some one of the great rivers of the county. The said Hubert Walter rose to his preferments by the very same steps that many famous princes of the Royall blood rose to the like preferments. Dennis was baptised in Borrisokane in 1845 and his sister Mary in 1847.
