Association of Directors of Social Services - House of Commons (Services) (Hansard, 12 July 1985)

Percentage of Indian and Pakistani Families in Various Circumstances
	Indian	Pakistani
Welfare in receipt of maintenance	754	710
No male head	30	43
Four or more children	454	775
Household less than £10 per week	493	680
Child working, household income	84	310
Household size of 6 or more	464	771

Regression Analysis
		Indian (N=123)				Pakistani (N=98)
		Ward of state	Ward of state	Ward of state	Ward of state	Ward of state	Ward of state
Male	Unemployed	81	115	30	111	135	41
	Employed	35	88	18	54	66	11
Female	Unemployed	81	97	31	125	135	73
	Employed	38	74	23	57	53	44

The data shown are the difference in 12 cases between Indian and Pakistani children before (unemployed) and after (employed) the regression analysis. The + before the Pakistani males in result of 41 indicates that they had higher scores than Indian children in that sub-test.

Hanson-Young told ABC news: My next step is to have us have a think about, as parliamentarians, whether these are perhaps the right rules that we need for a modern parliament.

Children in Care (Hansard, 24 February 1986)

After talking to a great many social workers over the past few months, I found that they are conscious that they have been fully supported by the Government from the Dispatch Box and elsewhere, during what has been a very difficult time given the horror cases that have been in newspaper headlines. Thurnham and for Sherwood Mr.

Friend the Member for Macclesfield Mr.

House of Commons (Services) (Hansard, 12 July 1985)

With somebody actually pushing the family perspective, we should make a lot of progress. Lady really saying that the only form of child care is day nursery provisions provided by the paid staff of a local authority? The other extreme of what to do with children in care requires an answer as to whether we need children's homes at all. In this case the child was separated from the parents over Christmas.

Children in Care (Hansard, 24 February 1986)

However, Senators, clerks, the Sergeant-at-Arms and some departmental heads were admitted. I do not think that it would be helpful to get into the more metaphysical aspects of parliamentary questions, but the hon. Members, for whatever reason they come here, may make policy decisions, but they do not make executive decisions.

Children in Care (Hansard, 24 February 1986)

B Brown, Procedure Committee Reference , Senate, Debates, 22 June 2009, p. The issue of allowing senators and members to take their children onto the floor of the parliamentary chambers cuts across a number of conflicting values. That is why we made our recommendations on the subject and recommended, for example, that there should be a limit on the number of temporary research assistant passes.
