Gregory the Great, Dialogues (1911) Book 1. pp.1

To whom the venerable man threatening in sweet sort spake unto him in this manner: 'You grieve me, good son, to see that you will not be ruled by your father; but give me not any such cause of grief, for it is not good that you do.

Staying in a Monastery in the United States

Not protest in a narrow interpretation but in its most broad sense: standing against all that is not of God, giving our lives to the Christ life.

How long has it been there? The Being Benedictine in the 21st Century Conference was both a reflection on practice and a questioning of our practice.

Being Benedictine in the 21st Century

Once you identify someone, nothing beats an initial no-strings-attached conversation many spiritual directors even offer such meetings for free, like we do at the Benedictine Center. And some there are that be sooner moved to the love of God by virtuous examples than by godly sermons: and oftentimes, by the lives of holy fathers, the heart doth reap a double commodity; for if, by comparing of his own life with theirs, he findeth himself inflamed with the love of heaven, although before he had haply a good opinion of himself, yet seeing now how far others do excel him, he becometh also more humble, and is brought to have a more lowly conceit of his own actions and virtue.

At this strange chance all were stricken in admiration, and his parents abstained now from further scoffing at his virtue, and began to have him in reverence for his abstinence, whom before for that very cause they did mock and scorn: and by this means, the fish, brought miraculously from the well, discharged God's servant from that shame, which he had endured through their uncivil jesting.
