Joachim de Fiore

This gloss is absent from many of the later manuscripts and from the 1517 edition. Together, they suggest to Troncarelli that the manuscript cannot be dated much past the middle of the thirteenth century.

Through growing awareness of the manuscripts, we can determine that the geographic distribution of our text was European-wide, with its two main epicenters being Italy, where it originated, and Bohemia. In his view, the Milich manuscript originated in thirteenth-century Italy and represents an earlier version than that found in the Prague codex. Potestà suggests that the reader who thus glossed V.

Joachim de Fiore

Il Comitato per le Celebrazioni ha anche promosso l'edizione della raccolta dei Codici Gioachiniti, l'Atlante delle Fondazioni Florenti, un libro sulle vicende dell' Ordine Florentino, un altro relativo ai Vaticini, conservati presso la biblioteca del duomo di. The Jeremiah commentary would go on to be printed twice more, again at Venice in 1525, and at Cologne in 1577, while the apocryphal figure collection, the Praemissiones, would also be printed three times, in 1517, 1525, and 1527. Con l'aiuto degli scribi Giovanni, Nicola e Luca, iniziò già a Casamari la stesura delle sue opere principali: la Concordia tra il vecchio e il nuovo testamento e l'Esposizione dell'Apocalisse.

Again, I am inclined to believe that this Carmelite manuscript should not be identified with Super Prophetas, although how exactly it relates will require further investigation. While much work remains before the publication of a formal, critical edition, my dissertation will present a working edition of Super Prophetas based on the 1517 print and the two oldest manuscript versions, Vat.
