Calendars of the House of Representatives

For example, in 1992, when Colorado's White River National Forest proposed to extend logging to East Meadow Creek, a largely undeveloped area directly west of the Gore Range Eagles Nest Primitive Area, it was strongly protested by wilderness proponents. Such situations rarely occurred in actual plans, but national forest managers' public information focused so heavily on coordination that they tended to leave this type of understanding with some people. The timber industry supported the bill vigorously.

Guide to House Records: Chapter 10

The Subcommittee gave the Forest Service credit for its repeated efforts to make the case for a balanced program but recognized, as evidenced by much of the hearing testimony, that funding for a balanced program had been inadequate and not fully responsive to the MUSY and NEPA statutes. NFMA ultimately provided legislative guidelines and standards for planning, managing, and monitoring multiple uses.
