He also notes 8 Edvardsson 2005. There were also other democratic or egalitarian elements among the Saxons before the Frankish conquest; most notably the general meetings at Marklo, south of Bremen, where from each district an equal number of noblemen, freemen, and serfs participated in legislation and political decision-making. There is some controversy about the extent of this process and the generality of this example,<sup>31</sup> but it is clear that it took place, leading to further loss of freedom for many.

Some regions were characterized by marked social differences, whereas others had a more equal distribution of property and power, with a greater portion of the population involved in political decision-making, as in Frisia and Saxony. In Zutphen zou een steur door een waterhoos op het dak van de Walburgkerk gedeponneerd zijn. Willems in Westerheem 30 1981.

In the Lenten season, hundreds of barrels of fresh plaice were sold daily at the market in Scheveningen. The fish farms that survived the longest were all large, comprised of several fishponds, and were located closest to important urban centres. Generally, the few scientific articles describing the historical effects of watermills on aquatic ecosystems do this in a qualitative or anecdotal manner, at local geographical scales , or examine relatively short periods in history.

De zalmvissers van de Biesbosch

In augustus 1626 was er een conflict over een steur die naar de stad Groningen was gebracht. Langs de hele Rijn werd dit verhaal verteld en zelfs in Bretagne deed het de ronde al waren het hier landarbeiders in plaats van dienstbodes.
