Further, the Constitutional Court gives official interpretations of the Constitution and the laws of Ukraine as well as opinions on the conformity between the Constitution and international treaties and procedures of impeachment against the President. The government cooperated with NGOs on victim identification through the national referral mechanism. The State Border Guard Service SBGS developed risk profiles for use in victim identification, and in coordination with an NGO, started development of a victim identification manual for first- and second-line officers.

Further, it calls elections of the President, may remove the President under a procedure of impeachment, and gives approval to decrees of the President on introducing state of martial law or of emergency. The decision of removal of the President following a procedure of impeachment is adopted by no less than three-quarters of the constitutional composition of the Parliament after the review of the case by the Constitutional Court and the receipt of the opinion of the Supreme Court.

Human Trafficking and Transnational Enforcement

PREVENTION The government maintained prevention efforts. Even though many nations are signatories to the Palermo Protocol, they would probably be unwilling to make the Palermo Protocol an enforceable criminalization of human trafficking. In addition, procedures for granting official status to victims did not work in some regions.

The ARC inter alia designates elections of deputies to the Parliament of the ARC, organises local referenda, manages property, approves budgets of the ARC, participates in ensuring the rights and freedoms of citizens and the promotion of legal order and public security as well as participates in the development and realisation of state programmes for the return of deported peoples. Because of this, the victims are often dependent on members of their own ethnic group receiving them in the destination country, even if those members are their traffickers.

In 2013, the Ministry of Social Policy MSP adopted uniform standards so that the same social services for victims would be provided regardless of which local office provided the assistance; however, the MSP lacked sufficient authority to establish and run the NRM in an efficient manner. For example, if a US law enforcement agency was investigating a possible case of human trafficking with ties to Russia, the Russian agency could agree to cooperate with the US agency.
