For all others who have useful information about this artist, please email the information to. He did, and his work was seen there by the artist, teacher and writer Peter de Francia, who was acting as an external assessor. His mother's first husband, a radio correspondent, had died on the Russian Front; his father had been a soldier, and it was his third marriage.

'Cooking the world and putting it into images'

If you do not know a great deal about the artist, but have noteworthy information to share, we would welcome you to send it also to. While there a reading of The Sleepwalker by Arthur Koestler, inspired the painting The Tower of Copernicus. I never actually talked to Francis Bacon, though we used to see one another coming and going.
