Robert Burns, First Edition, Signed

Then Montague, an' Guilford too, Began to fear, a fa', man; And Sackville dour, wha stood the stour, The German chief to thraw, man: For Paddy Burke, like ony Turk, Nae mercy had at a', man; An' Charlie Fox threw by the box, An' lows'd his tinkler jaw, man. It might have been better for Burns, especially in the be- ginning of his poetical career, while farming at iNlossgeil with his brother Gilbert, had he been less intimate with lawyers and new-licht ministers, all of whom, C'arlyle de- clared, would require to be sleeping in their graves before A 10 Burns and the Medical Profession. Several farms in the cold district of Clochnahill were, some years subsequent to 1740, left without cultivation.

Of his appearance among the sons as well as the daughters of men, we have the account of Dugald Stewart. Mis-spending all thy precious hours— Thy glorious, youthful prime! With his health now failing, and being totally dependent on his government salary to provide for his family, Burns became a mere shadow of the free spirit that had once sent shock waves through the Kirk with a series of devastating anti-clerical satires exposing absurd dogma to ridicule and scorn. The poet had halted at the inn on his way from Ellisland to Mauchline and gone to visit Mr.
