Voice, Trust, and Memory: Marginalized Groups and the Failings of Liberal Representation by Melissa S. Williams

Further, we have seen that when we articulate a scheme of representation, a great deal follows from the way we characterize the constituencies or groups that ought to receive representation. The intuition that women are best represented by women, and African-Americans by other African-Americans, has deep historical roots. The memory of state-sponsored discrimination against these groups, together with ongoing patterns of inequality along group lines, provides both a reason to recognize group claims and a way of distinguishing stronger from weaker claims.
