Initial Public Offerings Laws and Regulations

Agencies should exercise independent, reasonable judgment in evaluating each particular situation. In selecting and applying procedures, an entity should consider factors such as the complexity and nature of the entity, the availability and reliability of information used for comparison, and the skills and knowledge of the analysts.

Regulation of Financial Statements

If the agency wishes to provide for the possibility that an emergency employee could work from an approved telework site in lieu of traveling to the regular worksite in appropriate circumstances, an agency should encourage the employee to enter into a telework agreement providing for that contingency. On the whole, however, district judges have been reluctant to limit the use of the discovery devices.
