A short demurrer to the Jewes long discontinued barred remitter into England Comprising an exact chronological relation of their first admission into, their ill deportment, misdemeanors, condition, sufferings, oppressions, slaughters, plunders, by popular insurrections, and regal exactions in; and their total, final banishment by judgment and edict of Parliament, out of England, never to return again: collected out of the best historians and records. With a brief collection of such English laws, Scriptures, reasons as seem strongly to plead, and conclude against their readmission into England, especially at this season, and against the general calling of the Jewish nation. With an answer to the chief allegations for their introduction. / By William Prynne Esq; a bencher of Lincolnes

The year following, Anno 1289. Whether they could swear to maintain the king's authority, and at the same time swear disobedience to those articles which were authorized by his standing laws? His surviving sons, by Eleanor of Guienne, were Richard and John, who both succeeded him. By the Statute 1 H.

No Vestryman capable of holding the Office of Clerk of the Vestry. Which Vote hath been since adjudged a main motive for making the War a cause of Religion, consequently of calling in Foreign Princes to their aid and assistance; which before ever this Vote past, to ground the least pretence thereupon, the Irish made Religion the principal end of their Insurrection; and this Proposition was as you see one of the first to be demand'd, which gave the Parliament a cause for the Vote fore-mention'd. They had 1000 Musketeers, which either by bad way, or staying longer than the other, for to receive Ammunition, were not come up to begin the Battel, but were within Musket-shot, who also ran for company.
