Teaching Ethical Thinking in Every Christian School Class

Taken from Copyright © 1996 by R. The pacifist arguments promoted by Jim Wallis, Greg Boyd, and others are not persuasive. Kant becomes the epitome of this conceptual reticence.

A Sense of Style: Beauty and the Christian Moral Life

In the same way such an ethics stresses both the providence of God and the responsibility of Christians. Vines and Branches Jesus gives an analogy: I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinedresser.

Enacting the Promise of God: Christian Ethics and the Study of the Sacraments

The moral life is described in terms of love. When the teacher is wrong, he, and not the Bible, is the one with the problem.

Christian Ethics

Suffice it to note that some Christians today still debate the theological implications of Christianity or more specifically, the Church as an institution achieving state sponsorship.

What is Christian Ethics?

But, while for Jews and Christians, creation did not emerge out of combat, the life of Jesus Christ in the four Gospels does involve combat with evil, especially the demonic. A number of interpreters have understood the ethics of Jesus in ways that have emphasized the absolute nature of its demands. Unless we live like a hermit, most of what we do on a daily basis involves making ethical decisions.

Enacting the Promise of God: Christian Ethics and the Study of the Sacraments

Even more, the allegory of judgment in Matthew 25 shows us that Christ is in the faces of those we served or ignored. It exists for the people of God.

The Nature and Scope of Christian Ethics

It is patently obvious that the teaching thus given was frequently expressed in fig. But the ecumenical aspect of Christian ethics has also increased dramatically, together with shared concerns and approaches even in different cultures and countries. After this narrative history, a series of questions about evil is presented that Christians will continue to wrestle with throughout the Medieval, Renaissance, and Reformation eras.

Why Is Living the Christian Ethic Important?

This worldview says that God created us in his own image. One landscape may be a beach; other a bedroom; another an office, and still another a battlefield. Jesus agrees to this and is killed.
