A New Kant

A second is the contingent way in which the particular has this determinate property. The relationships between internal and external existence, self and others, that paradoxically underlie immanence, now appear internally in positive transcendence. The mathematical ascend higher in the scale of abstraction.

Metaphysics

If their status as individuals is primitive, form-copies will not be individuated by the particulars to which they belong. Equally controversial is its connection within the Phaedo to the method of recollection and to philosophical practice in general. The physical world is an image, an imperfect world of change.
