Battle of Wagram and similar military conflicts

In this affair the Austrian troops were commanded by a French émigré, General Nordmann. The French forces suffered 34,000 casualties, a number compounded by the 20,000 suffered only weeks earlier at Aspern-Essling.

The Battle of Wagram

Marmont and Wrede both made marches of around 125 miles in four days. Charles issued orders for a phased withdrawal at about 2.

Battle of Wagram

The grand battery was to contain sixty guns from the Guards, forty from the Army of Italy and a number of 12-pounders from Wrede's Bavarians.
