For the Fruit of All Creation

It held only a desk, a portable pump organ, and the stock of the small songbook. Cripps said he believed an explosion was triggered on 142's Deep near to 95's district by shotfiring near a main airway, noting that the explosion had occurred about the time the 95's night shift deputy, Sam Matthias, would have arrived at this point. She knew practice began promptly and always came early.

For the Fruits of His Creation

They supposed rightly that the odds of unanimous tardiness were slim indeed, especially when the reasons were examined. In Dennis the night, Fred Davies, who was on duty at the bottom of the main shaft, heard a crashing sound and was enveloped in a cloud of dust for around 30 seconds.

For the Fruits of His Creation

The principal impetus for early English hymnody came in the late 17th century from the hymn writer Isaac Watts. Samuels told a further 30 men working in the 29's district to follow. To make any further copies or to perform the work you must get permission from Hope Publishing Company or belong to and report the copying activity to CCLI, Licensing or OneLicense.

Mid-Twentieth Century, and the Hymn Explosion

Chisholm, penned the text of this enduring classic, and William M. Work was completed in 1911.

Hope Publishing Company History

Other hymn copyrights acquired by Hope in the 1980s were by composers such as Margaret Clarkson, Jeffery Rowthorn, Jane Marshall, Hal Hopson, Rusty Edwards, Carl Schalk, Ken Medema, Janie Alford, William Rowan, and Tom Fettke. Hope's composer, Colin Gibson, also from New Zealand, has set many of her hymns to music.

Gresford disaster

By the mid-1970s, both denominational and nondenominational publishers such as Word and Hope began turning out a steady stream of new hymnals incorporating a wealth of new material, ranging from liturgical hymns to praise choruses and African American spirituals.
