The following ASPO Planning Advisory Service reports will be helpful: Information Report No. This district provides areas for primarily low density single-family detached dwellings similar to those provided for in the RS-150, RS-100, RS-75 and RS-60 single-family districts, but with smaller minimum lot size requirements.

A Practical Guide to Understanding Zoning Laws

A structure that is under construction on the effective date of this Zoning Ordinance or any amendment need not be changed to satisfy any new or different requirements of this Zoning Ordinance, so long as construction is completed prior to the expiration of the applicable building permit s , including time extensions.

What is the purpose of zoning ordinances?

Diagrams and illustrations may serve several purposes in a zoning ordinance: a they clarify zoning terms and provisions; b they provide a handy reference to major features of the ordinance; and c they increase the readability of the ordinance. The industrial general district is established to provide areas for industry in locations, which are served by major transportation facilities and adequate utilities, but are not feasible nor highly desirable for heavier industrial development because of proximity to residential, recreational, commercial or related developments. Planned development districts PD and PD-A , in accordance with the regulations of this chapter and in conformity with the Tampa Comprehensive Plan, are also permitted.

They also provide regulations regarding how buildings and land may be used, whether it be for residential, industrial, commercial or agricultural purposes. For a discussion of zoning definitions, see ASPO Planning Advisory Service Information Report No.

Illustrating the Zoning Ordinance

While property may lawfully be zoned differently than its surrounding uses, such varying uses are typically permitted because they serve a public benefit or a useful purpose to the other properties. The process is not universal, but creation generally begins by soliciting input from citizens and interested parties regarding how the city should evolve.
