The effects of these parenting styles on the outcomes of child rearing are very well established.

THE BIBLE AND PSYCHOLOGY

Like what you're reading and listening to on the Postmodern Realities Podcast? Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press. These views are based on an evolutionary axiom: The purpose of the evolution of human beings is the urge to survive, to reproduce the species. Post-Reformation, nontheistic world views abandoned theism as the foundation for expecting orderliness in nature, and for expecting that the tools of reason could be used to understand what was observed empirically i.

Modern Psychotherapies: A Comprehensive Christian Appraisal

Decisions of school psychologists and counseling and clinical psychologists are, as often as possible, based on the research findings related to the problem. Is there agreement today on the integration of psychology and Christianity? The major kinds of psychologies, described here as dynamic, behavioral, and humanistic, are foundationally nontheistic or even antitheistic as to the existence of God, naturalistic often materialistic as to the nature of reality, physicalistic or pantheistic as to the nature of humankind, relativistic as to values and ethics, and pragmatic as to treatment. The psychological literature does not even hint at this relationship.
