Herbs Poems

My river was once unseparated. We were yet to discover how to reach it without getting scratches and bleeding scabs all over our skin. Me Nose knows, but me eyes don't.

Beauty and Health Herbal Poetry

Remember when you go into the world to keep your eyes and ears wide open. Know that you are loved like crazy.

Herbal Poem by Katharine Tynan

Here are the benefits of using natural soap and skin products: 1.

Herbs Poems

When it stalked out of sight, I went after it, but all I could find where I was expecting to see the bird was a three-foot-long lizard in ill-fitting skin and with linear mouth expressive of the even temper of the mineral kingdom. I love like I am allergic to grass I am allergic to grass. The lime-light shines; ten and eight.

Love Poems

Maybe she knew it was spring. And here passed, long uneventful days with the occasional nights that Reab and I would sneak out of the huts to spend the cool nights together and forcing ourselves out of bed at the crack of dawn along with the villagers, exhausted but happy.

Love Poems

It got in a huff and walked away ... Jerrica put out her herbal cigarette, she took her slogan seriously, today's herb was marjoram.

Herbs Poems

Blooming kids and even ones own task will work with the past in wedding event. I fluttered my lids to get rid of the wetness but he reached over and caught a tear on his pinky and licked it.
