The fourth chapter is to evaluate the value and influence Yucun Fu Hua in QingDynasty fu field and nowadays objectively. The competition among the various forms of modern nationalism did not dominate the Manchurian intelligentsia at that time of uncertainty and transformation. The study of Yucun Fu Hua as well as the study of all fu hua class works still has a long way to go.

The third chapter is the summary and discussion on the theory of fu. Reconstructing the lives and thoughts of Yuan Jinkai 1871-1947 and Zhao Xinbo 1887-1951 , two prominent local Fengtian intellectuals who chose to collaborate with the Japanese in 1931, I argue that intellectual collaboration in early Manchukuo was not just a result of vested interest and moral failure, but also a product of the frontier cultural space in which the local intellectuals operated in the late Qing and Republican years. Fu hua is the five kinds of fu criticism form the most nights out, which is also the most systematic and comprehensive theory of fu.

The competition among the various forms of modern nationalism did not dominate the Manchurian intelligentsia at that time of uncertainty and transformation. In the first decades of the twentieth century, southern Manchuria was a temporal-spatial frontier zone where Confucianism, Fengtian localism, Chinese nationalism, and Japanese colonial cultural influence encountered and intermingled with each other.

Instead, such nationalisms were also co-existing and competing with many other cultural systems, local and imported. In the fluid cultural and political environment, Yuan invented the concept of a local China of manifested Confucian Chinese-ness, while Zhao pursued the ideal of transnational modernity, with the Chinese nation being a transient phase towards East Asian unity. Abstract This thesis examines the cultural context of intellectual collaboration in the Japanese colonial state of Manchukuo 1931-1945.
