Huron County Bibliography

The five McTaggart brothers, with their two sisters, came in 1858 and located land. By their united efforts they were enabled to build the first church at Port Austin to which belonged 50 families. The photos show various sites through the cemetery.

About

The rise of the steamboat brought trade upriver and opened the Midwest to settlers and goods. Its sprawling network included enslaved workers on cotton plantations, merchants in New Orleans, sailors and shipowners, textile workers in New England and Great Britain, and customers around the world. Other names are to be met with which at various historical periods were used to designate the Hurons; they may be said without exception to be misnomers.
