Tiziana Caianiello, Katrin Lohe, Laura Weber, Thekla Zell. ZERO is now acknowledged as one of the most important avant-garde movements of art history of the post-war period.

Heinz Mack. Ink drawings and ceramics

Mack founded the Zero group with Otto Piene in 1957 in Dusseldorf, Germany. Many of the ZERO artists are better known for their affiliations with other movements, including , , , , and . The works were loaned by the German collectors Gerhard and Anna Lenz, who had been involved with the Zero movement almost from its beginnings.

Heinz Mack (b. 1931)

For example, when you look at a leaf through a microscope, you notice that the organic matter is arranged in a way that gives stability to the entire surface. When Heinz Mack first turned to the technique of ceramics almost by chance in 1997, he began an intensive creative phase with this medium and was particularly fascinated by the archaic firing process. The group attracted the involvement of many great colleagues from around Europe: Arman, Aubertin, Castellani, Fontana, Klein, Manzoni, Mavignier, Peeters, Salentin, Schoonhoven, Spoerri, and Tinguely all contributed work for exhibition or collaborated on projects.
