Tarm Ruk Keun Jai (2015)

Nadech Kugimiya is so dreamy in this that I couldn't even believe. The side characters overacted as usual, but they were funny and kept the lakorn lightm MUSIC: Nothing amazing, but the theme was good and blended well with the drama. On the other hand, as complete as he was, the female lead was extremely annoying most of the time, that's why I said that I watched it until the end because of him.

And, what's more, his character is complete as a man and was the main reason why I watched this lakorn. That really pissed me off.

Mew's character was good too, and it was nice to finally have a heroine who will actually stand up for herself once in a while. One day she realizes that her father is still alive and working in a farm in nothern Thailand. As for complete, I mean, he was understanding, intelligent, kind, sexy, confident, competent, funny, cute, gosh, he was the perfect man and husband material.

At the beginning I found her extremely selfish, always causing trouble for everyone and still asking to remain at the farm shamelessly. .
