Teaching and learning in a multilingual Europe: findings from a cross

Things remained pretty similar until the mid 1990s, but by 2004 over 14% of successful candidates were getting a mark of 14 or more, and a pass with merit or distinction — three times more than in 1967.

The French Education system

Class size was a key feature, smaller classes positively impact the academic achievement of the children e. Transition support practices, such as transition meetings, can facilitate successful school beginnings.

Teaching and learning in a multilingual Europe: findings from a cross

This Curriculum 2000 was the result of much more extensive consultation with teachers than previous versions. At their best, these developments were highly creative and empowering, resulting in some or all teachers in the school feeling a new sense of professional achievement.
