Culture and religious beliefs in relation to reproductive health

The challenge remains to further consider the implications of such practice and ask for God's enabling to 'think Christianly', to use John Stott's phrase, and be prepared to adapt in the light of new revelation.

Professional Ethicists Rarely Oppose Abortion

Although the internet was considered a first choice among student at both levels, it was the first choice of almost half of year-4 students 45% and only the fourth choice of year-1 22. But even if the pro-life position did follow from a religious tradition, that would only be relevant for religious believers.

The Nightmares of Choice by Rachel M. MacNair

There is an interrelationship between bodily health and spiritual health.

34 Ethical Issues All Christians Should Know

In the same way, the adequacy of the reasons specified by pro-choice or pro-life supporters is relative to the literary context in which an individual judge it.

Old Testament prohibitions against charging interest were limited to certain kinds of situations, particularly taking advantage of the poor in their poverty, but the New Testament does not prohibit the charging of interest usury , and throughout many centuries of church history, Christian leaders increasingly came to see the moral legitimacy of charging interest in many situations. Only two scientific studies that look at a large number of people have been done by researchers who did not work in the abortion field. Justice is both the operative principle and the defining virtue in decisions about the distribution of scarce health care resources and the provision of health care for the medically indigent and uninsured.

Choice Evangelical Books of 1972

Spending turns money into goods and services that we should use and enjoy with thanksgiving to God. Perhaps we can all agree that no unborn baby ever reaches adult size and that, in many pregnancies, the baby's size does not become a significant obstruction until the very late stages of the pregnancy. As far as we are aware, this is the first study to undertake such a systematic analysis of provider attitudes and values towards abortion policy and their role in shaping implementation of services.
