violence or. In the danwei-housing units women were also controlled by the neighbors, who reported to the committees. The decay of the danwei or the women's cutting-off reinforced the family connections the women now had to rely on.

The 10 Reasons Chinese Women Marry Foreign Men

Even if the wives do move to mainland China with their husbands, the businessman still finds ways to carry on affairs. Often many people, cadres and ordinary workers, are involved in arranging marriages for the youngsters. They think about their personal development.

Family values, despite being a social issue, influence several domains because of the importance attributed to them in Chinese culture. Jeffreys asserts that the Marriage Law of 1980 provided for divorce on the basis that emotions or mutual affections were broken.

Chinese Family Values: How They Affect Life in China

The Code specified that family property legally belonged to the father, with no connection to the ancestral clan. Land leases were technically supposed to transfer with marriage to a woman's marital family, but the perfect allocation of land leases was not always reached, meaning women could potentially lose land upon marriage. Children should pay respect and honor their parents.
