I remembered this being one of the better books in the series and I wasn't disappointed. I got this book out of the freebie bin at the local library. Maybe Elmore Leonard, Lucia Berlin, AM Homes, Thom Jones, George Saunders, Nicola Barker, Chandler et al are on a par, but McBain's is so good that you never have a single moment's opportunity to question whether his characters are real or not - they're realer than most people I know.

Again they have not let me down. I can certainly see why this book appears on both lists, as it is another gem in the police procedural genre. It has two rivers, called Dix 94 and Harb 17 , a park Silvermine Park and a fancy apartment area nearby called Silvermine Oval, a big hospital like Bellevue Buenavista—the beautiful view becomes Spanish instead of French; Cindy Forrest is an intern there , and an artistic district called the Quarter Greenwich Village-97.
