What is heroin and how is it used?

Pure heroin diacetylmorphine is a white powder with a bitter taste abused for its euphoric effects. Someone who is smoking heroin will have sores on their nostrils or lips because they have burned and then irritated the skin in those areas. Effects of overdose may include slow and shallow breathing , blue lips and nails, muscle spasms, , coma, and possible death.

Heroin, Morphine and Opiates

In many pharmacies you can now access naloxone without a prescription to keep with you, at home or in your car in case of an overdose emergency. Instead, they will sniff, snort or smoke it.

Heroin DrugFacts

Vomiting and nausea The body will become ill from the lack of heroin due to the high dependency that comes with using. When the drug wears off, people experience a depressed mood and often crave the drug to regain the good feelings. Obviously a heroin addict would rather have heroin but prescription opioids are a good replacement for them too.
