Opening the books on lobbying activity and governmental policymaking is essential to reducing the opportunity for corruption, as well as the appearance of corruption. That data could reveal business secrets, intellectual property, or know-how.

Authorization of microbial plant protection products in the Scandinavian countries: A comparative analysis

Forced to share their data, large firms would have fewer incentives to improve their existing data-gathering capabilities because the value of that data would not be exclusively theirs. CSIS does not take specific policy positions. In another survey of lobbyists across Europe, not just in Brussels, a large majority of European professional lobbyists specifically favored a mandatory system of lobbyist registration.

JUST Newsroom

Key sectors, such as lobbying consultancies and corporate EU affairs offices, are underrepresented. From what can be observed, the new digital ecosystem is enabling and nurturing innovation in Europe, allowing European entrepreneurs and businesses to grow and prosper as they improve the lives of EU consumers.

Lobbying and transparency: A comparative analysis of regulatory reform

Achieving it can impose considerable economic costs on both the public and private sectors and those costs can deter appropriate attempts to influence governmental decision making. Content of registration When it comes to the content of the registration, the basic information required is largely the same under both US and Canadian law, though there are some differences. Until recently, however, the European national experiments have produced very different results among themselves and in comparison with the North American counterparts.

JUST Newsroom

Regulating ethical standards is far more controversial than transparency, and not an idea that is yet as widely accepted in either North America or Europe.

Authorization of microbial plant protection products in the Scandinavian countries: A comparative analysis

Commissioner Siim Kallas from Estonia championed the transparency campaign. From this collection, which contained several duplicates, a total of 277 baby bottles were analysed. With 200 incentives in place the EU has created favourable conditions to support biogas electricity.

A comparison of data protection legislation and policies across the EU

By constraining how the most innovative online service providers and intermediaries can operate in Europe, the Commission is decreasing the chance that the next disruptive and innovative breakthrough will occur in Europe.
