Online Resources and are Photovoice presentations facilitated by the Dexter Coalition to Reduce Underage Drinking, a community coalition in Washtenaw, Michigan. The custodians participated in a Photovoice project to identify, categorize, and prioritize occupational hazards and to discuss and propose solutions to these problems.

Chapter 3. Assessing Community Needs and Resources

Disposable cameras are cheaper, but digital cameras are more flexible and forgiving. Many conference presenters come from the same pool as conference participants — people in the field or members of the sponsoring organization. Conference staff, as well as site representatives, can use cell phones or walkie-talkies to communicate, and having such a communication network can lower the stress level immensely, especially in crisis situations.

Grants to support businesses by providing water and sewer services, access roads, and other public facilities. Since Photovoice is essentially a type of , it can also be used as a , as an assessment tool, as a way of gathering data, and as an evaluation tool. Did the site provide what it said it would? The more quickly participants, representatives of the facility, presenters, and others can find these folks, the better.

Organizing a conference can establish you as a voice of reason or a leading authority in the field, which, in turn, can bring funding and requests for collaboration that can improve your work. And, to the greatest extent feasible, CDBG funds are to be used as gap financing; this implies that other local, state, and federal funds will be invested in the project.

Community Development Block Grant (CDBG)

Evaluation results can be used to improve the way the organization uses Photovoice, as well as the way project results can be used to bring about change.
