A History of Settlement in Ireland

In the hole which the vile hands Of soldiers had made thee, Unhonoured, unshrouded, And headless they laid thee ; No sigh to regret thee, No eye to rain o'er thee, No dirge to lament thee, No friend to deplore thee! The five ends of Erin are the five kingdoms — Munster, Leinster, Ulster, Connaught, and Meath — into which the island was divided, under the Milesian dynasty. Letters: Cross of the Scriptures AI 8, 4, p5. In 1969 he also set up the Group for the Study of Irish Historic Settlement using the then Deserted Medieval Village Research Group as a model, to co-ordinate research on past settlement patterns, and especially those of the Middle Ages, by archaeologists, geographers and historians.
