The Air Quality Index values for New York City for 2012 indicate a maximum out of 500 of 150 and a median of 55 on a scale of 0 the best to 500 the worst. Changes in tourism, such as the number of tourists and the season of their visits, can also impact the coastline. BACKGROUND The sustainability of the City of New York encompasses numerous dimensions—social, economic, and environmental including climate related — and their interrelationships.
