Quiller KGB, W H Allen, 1989 14. He also believes that guns give their carriers a dangerously false sense of security, and dislikes the noise they make.

Quiller Meridian, by Adam Hall

Quiller notes that agents shadow executives, as his service calls them hate trains because of their claustrophobic environments. A suspicious explosion in the generals' former car, however, allows Quiller to escape to the frigid town of Novosibirsk and resume his search for them by shadowing Tanya Rusakova, a clerk who seemed familiar with one of them—and he's right at hand when Tanya fingers former General Gennadi Vichenko to a soldier who kills him.

Quiller Meridian by Adam Hall

There was also a British TV series starring Michael Jayston based on the series.
